

Gun Permit Transfer--Lots of Discussion

SHERIFF MARTIN

By LYNN MULVANEY KINGSTON

A decision to move the county's pistol permit records from the sheriff's office to the county clerk's office is being opposed by Sheriff William B. Martin.

Martin told The Freeman today that such a move "would handicap the police." "It is just another way of taking away police powers," Martin said.

County Clerk Albert Spada said that he had been notified on Friday by County Judge Raymond J. Mino that the judge wanted the transfer made. Said Spada, "The decision belongs to the judge. It is within his jurisdiction."

Purely Investigative

Judge Mino said today that the sheriff has nothing to do with the issuance of the permits and that his (the sheriff's) work is purely investigative.

The judge offered no further comment but added that he would issue a statement "at the proper time."

Earlier this week, the Ulster County Legislature's Sheriff's Committee met with the County Clerk Committee to discuss the possible move. Martin said he had learned of the plans from several legislators.

Apparently, the only legislative action necessary would be for the transfer of funds from the sheriff's budget to the county clerk's budget.

Sheriff Martin feels that the pistol permit information at their fingertips on a 24 hour a day basis.

This is necessary, he says, if his and other police agencies wish to carry out their work promptly and efficiently.

As an example, he cites the fact that information concerning a pistol owner was sought in the middle of the night earlier this week and the department was able to supply it immediately. "We couldn't have it if it were in the county clerk's office," he concluded.

No Other Place

Sheriff Martin says he knows of no other place in New York

State other than New York City where the county clerk's office is the pistol permit bureau.

Explaining his department's operation in connection with pistol permit applications, Sheriff Martin says one of his office secretaries handles the job on a part time basis, also serving as part time matron and doing secretarial work. In 1967, 500 permits were issued out of his office and in 1968, 554. The sheriff said that more women applied this year than in previous years.

Both Spada and Martin expressed the opinion that in the future all such licensing will come under the jurisdiction of the state.

move would not lessen his department's work because he and his men would still be responsible for the fingerprinting, photographing and investigation of all applicants. At the same time his department would be handicapped in not having the

213 Enemy Killed

Repulse Attack on GI Base

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes and artillery pounded North Vietnamese positions inside Cambodia today as 213 enemy were killed in a screaming death charge against a U.S. infantry base, military spokesmen said.

The battle raged 45 miles northwest of Saigon around a base of the 25th Infantry Division called Frontier City, one mile from the Cambodian border.

North Vietnamese gunners hurled nearly 500 rockets and mortar shells at the base from firing sites ranging from just across the border to 2 1/2 miles inside the neutral country, spokesmen said. The barrage preceded a fierce ground assault.

But the 150 base defenders had been alerted by radar sightings early in the night and were well dug in—so well they only suffered seven men slightly wounded, the spokesmen said.

Associated Press correspondent Robert Ohman reported from the base more than 500 North Vietnamese troops from the Viet Cong's 9th Division stormed out of Cambodia at about 2 a.m. and hit the barbed wire perimeter of the American camp.

Ohman reported about eight North Vietnamese soldiers broke through the perimeter with bangalore torpedoes but were cut down.

Fixed-wing and helicopter gunships and artillery from several surrounding American bases lashed the enemy positions inside Cambodia, with shells exploding about 1,000 yards across the border.

"A lot of that stuff was in Cambodia," said one officer. "When we receive fire we engage them. We don't wait to ask Sihanouk if it's in his country."

This referred to Cambodian Prince Sihanouk, who has complained in the past about American and South Vietnamese violations of his border and severed diplomatic relations with Washington because of this. U.S. commanders on the front are authorized to fire back if fired on from enemy sanctuaries on the Cambodian site.

Besides the North Vietnamese rocket launchers and mortars firing on the base, field reports said three .50-caliber anti-aircraft machine guns opened fire on helicopter gunships and World War II vintage C47s armed with rapid-firing Gatling guns that spew out 18,000 rounds a minute. The enemy guns were silenced and none of the planes were hit, spokesmen said.

Air Force tactical fighter-bombers also were called in to support the American base, but they apparently stayed on the Vietnamese side of the border, according to first reports.

Cornell Turmoil May Be Extended Into Next Week

By United Press International

Hardening positions by the administration, Negro students and an angry faculty at Cornell University threatened today to extend into next week the turmoil which has gripped the Ithaca, N.Y., campus since armed black militants seized a Student Center last Sunday.

At other colleges the season of student discontent heated ever hotter with building occupations, plans for shut-downs next week and a call for legislation cracking down on campus arms carriers.

Tom Jones, Negro spokesman for the Afro-American Society at Cornell said Friday he would not disarm despite a plea from school President Dr. James Perkins.

The possession of firearms by some militants came to light on the 14,000-student campus after members seized Straight Hall last Sunday and held it for 36 hours while demanding amnesty for three Negro students facing disciplinary action. At least 15 of the militants who left the hall were armed with rifles and shotguns.

Perkins indicated a search of campus living quarters would be made today to locate any arms on campus.

On the West Coast, Dr. S. I. Hayakawa, whose San Francisco State College campus has been quiet while student protest action shifted to East Coast schools, spoke to cheering members of the California Peace Officers Association in Los Angeles Friday.

He said he worked out a plan to station police in every classroom to deal with recent disorders at San Francisco State.

"I told them before they went out there: 'Look, keep smiling. Try to avoid trouble. But if it becomes necessary to arrest a student, keep smiling even when you are dragging the son of a bitch away.'"

Students were occupying buildings through the night at the University of Kentucky at Lexington and Colgate University at Hamilton, N.Y.

A rally of black students at Ohio University at Athens, Ohio, ended abruptly when President Vernon Alden promised the school would have a Black Studies Institute and executive dean for Afro-American Affairs next fall.

Buell G. Gallagher, president of City College of New York,

Friday reaffirmed plans to suspend classes through Monday. Some professors and students ignored Gallagher's orders Friday and held classes. President Nixon was presumed to be discussing the student unrest at a Friday Association of Black Collegians dinner at his Camp David retreat with Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Meanwhile, the Colgate University campus was quiet today as Negro students continued to occupy a faculty club and talks continued between blacks and the administration.

The blacks, members of the Association of Black Collegians, took over Merrill House about 4 a.m. Friday and gave the building's occupants until 7 a.m. to leave, which they did.

College Riots Spur Albany

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state legislature warmed up to approving severe penalties to prevent campus disorder Friday by shoving through bills clamping down on demonstrations.

Awaiting action was a campus gun control plan proposed by Governor Rockefeller that would make it a crime to carry firearms on campus without written authorization.

The governor's bill would: — Make entering a campus building with a firearm punishable by up to seven years in jail.

— Make possession of a firearm on campus, without written permission, punishable by up to a $1,000 fine and one year in jail.

Without Debate

The Senate, without debate, unanimously approved a proposal similar to the governor's. The bill, by Sen. Edward J. Speno, R-East Meadow, would make it a felony to be armed with a gun during campus uprisings. Earlier in the day, 23 Republican Assemblymen called for legislation that would greatly hamper militant student organizations such as the Students for a Democratic Society.

In the Assembly, an amendment was approved 110-30 to stiffen the campus riot plan already signed into law by Governor Rockefeller.

The law now states that colleges and universities must file with the state by July 19 a plan to control student disturbances. The amendment, by Assemblyman Ronald H. Tills, R-Hamburg, would require institutions of higher learning not only to file rules of campus conduct, but to enforce them. Lack of enforcement would result in loss of state aid to the schools.

Passage of the Tills' amendment followed debate in which Albany lawmakers were applauded on the floor for urging lawmakers to "stop coddling minorities."

a Republican, told legislators "Mere minorities have been able to enforce their will on the majority of students."

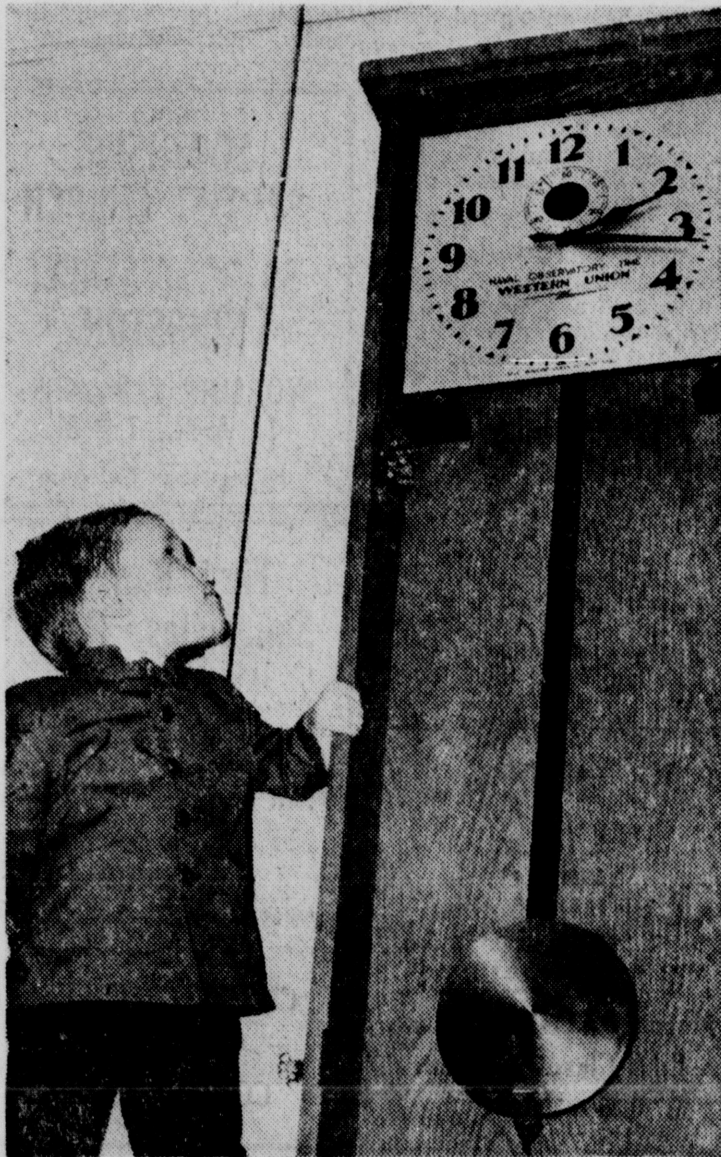

Argues With Dems

Assemblyman Stephen J. Solarz, D - Brooklyn, argued with the Democratic opposition to the bill that "if by granting amnesty, an administration is able to keep an institution alive, then we shouldn't penalize them for it."

It was reported Governor Rockefeller would veto the bill. Other legislation concerning student disorder that had passed the legislature but was reportedly viewed unfavorably by the governor included:

— A plan to take scholarships away from all students who are convicted of breaking the law during demonstrations on campus.

— A measure making it punishable by up to a $1,000 fine and one year in jail to prevent classes from being held or to keep students and teachers from going to classes.

It's Clock Changing Time

Three-year-old Leonard Bovee Jr. knows what time it is despite the jumping ways of Daylight Saving Time due to arrive this weekend. Residents are advised to set their clocks one hour ahead tonight so that they can wake up Sunday morning to the right time. And don't worry about losing that hour now because it comes back in the fall with the return to Eastern Standard Time. 18 Crewmen Die In Plane Crash

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI)—A U.S. Air Force EC121 intelligence-gathering plane like the one North Korean jets shot down crashed and exploded on takeoff from Korat Air Base in a rainstorm Friday, the U.S. Embassy said today.

All 18 crewmen were killed, the embassy said.

Officials said the four-engine propeller-driven plane was on a mission "connected with the Vietnam war," specifically "routine tactical air reconnaissance activity." The spokesman said the mission did not resemble that of the EC121 shot down April 15 while over the Sea of Japan.

The plane gouged out a furrow 500 yards long, then exploded and came to rest upside down 1,000 yards from the base, officials said. There were no civilian casualties.

The base said the plane sent no distress message to the Korat tower. The rain prevented the tower from watching the takeoff.

U.S. military police blocked off the area until the wreckage which may include up to 7 tons of electronic equipment, could be removed and a military board was appointed to investigate the crash.

Korat was a base for planes that bombed North Vietnam the past three years. The 388th U.S. Tactical Fighter Wing, consisting mostly of F105 Thunderchief jet fighter bombers, is stationed there, along with 5,000 airmen.

The EC121s are used partly for weather reconnaissance. Military sources said they were not flying EC121 missions over North Vietnam. The sources would not say if they fly over Laos.

The EC121 is the military version of the Lockheed Constellation, a four-engine triple-tail plane once the backbone of commercial airlines' transatlantic fleet. The planes have been refitted to carry more than seven tons of electronic equipment.

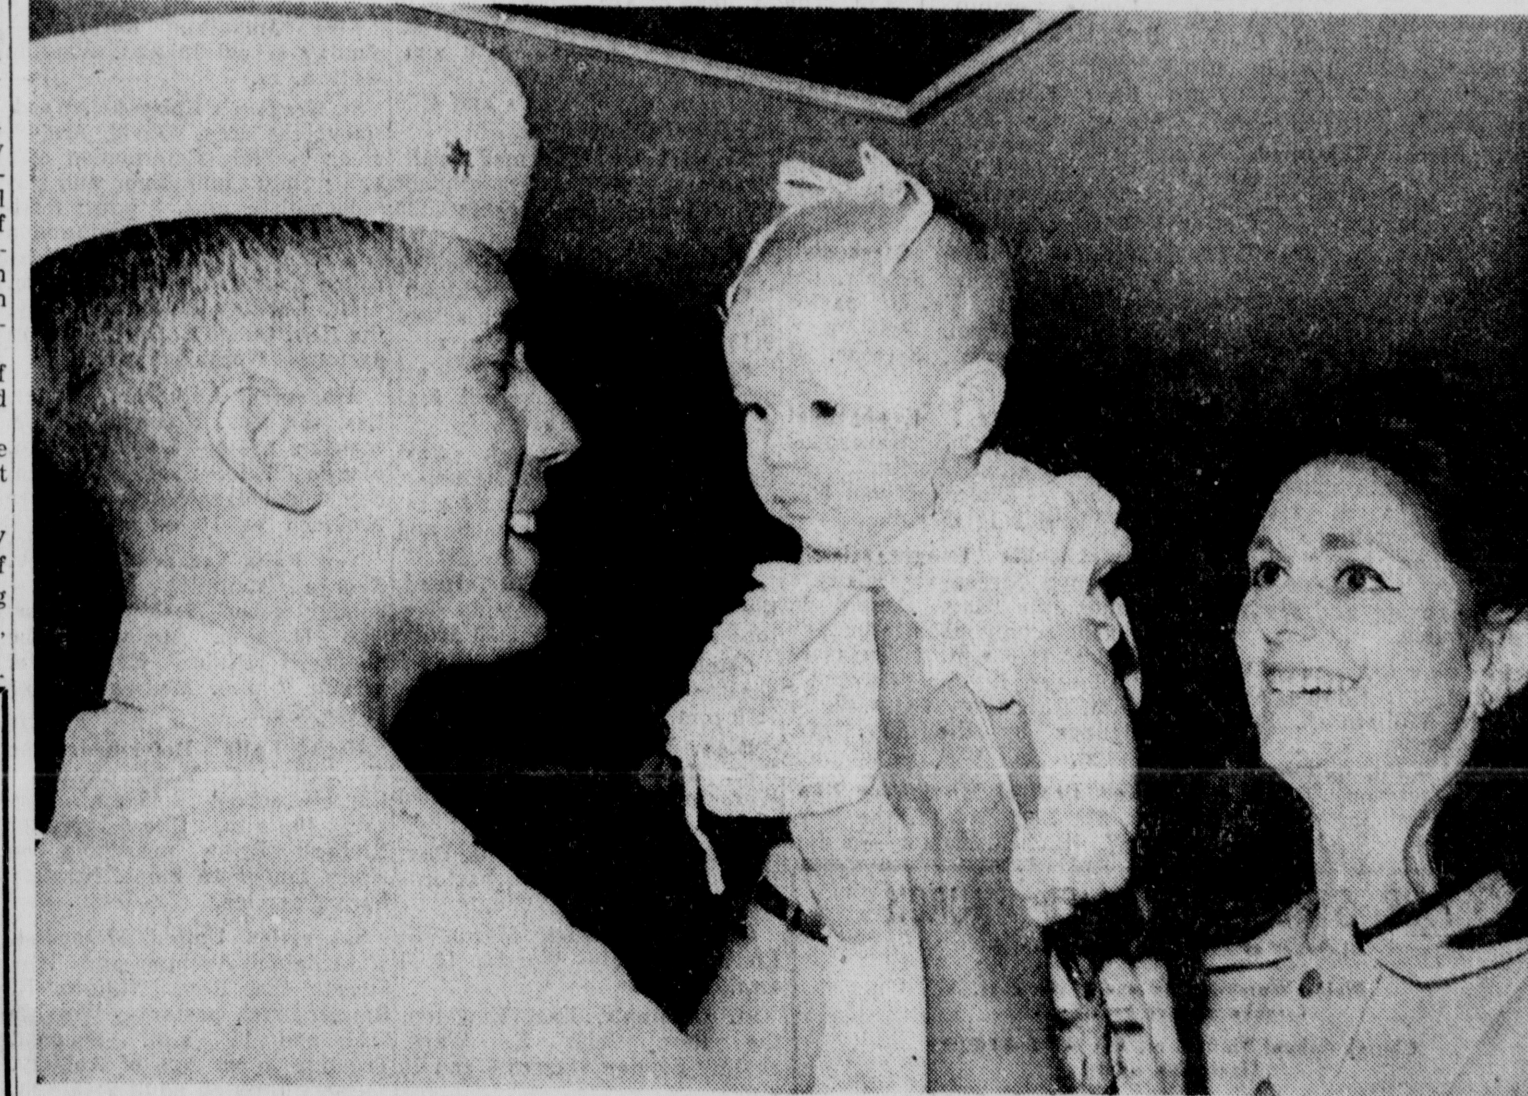

Officials said the names of the crewmen would be withheld until relatives were notified.

The EC121 belonged to the 533rd Reconnaissance Wing at the base, officials said.

It crashed in a rice paddy 1,000 yards from the village of Ban Mai, scattering flaming wreckage across a wide area, spokesmen said.

COOKING SMELLS BETTER

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it improper to mention the delicious smell of food coming from the kitchen when at a friend's house for dinner?—Florence

Dear Florence: Compliment the cook all you wish when dinner is over, but refrain from mentioning the aroma ahead of time. Most hostesses don't like the idea that cooking smells have permeated the house, and even your sincere, "My, that smells good" can be upsetting.

Buffet Line Moves According To Setting

Dear Mrs. Post: At buffet dinners at times one would obviously go to the right when serving oneself. How about where one circles the table? The plates, silverware, etc. are on a serving table. Does it matter, in this case, whether one goes to the right to left?—Mrs. Wright

Dear Mrs. Wright: The direction the guests take depends on the buffet setting. The hostess should set it up in whatever direction makes the best flow of traffic. The guests naturally start at the empty plates, proceed to the main dish—casserole or roast for example—and then continue past the table helping themselves. If it is a large party and two main dishes are on the table, one should be at either end with accompaniments on both sides of the table. The guests form two lines going in opposite directions, thus greatly speeding up the serving.

STOP AND PROTECT YOURSELF

Police feel that rather than thinking of the city as a jungle, women and girls can constructively protect themselves not only on the street, but in the car, at home, and on the telephone. Their suggestions are sensible, simple, and easy to follow. They're certainly well worth the time that it takes for any woman to read this short article, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist.

If you should be bothered by an obscene telephone call, hang up promptly and report the call to the police and the telephone company immediately. Don't give out any information to the caller. These calls are usually made at random and probably won't occur again. If they should continue, there are means that the telephone company has to trace them. If a caller ties up your line, call the police from a neighbor's phone and try to have the call traced.

When you go away, do it as quietly as possible. Be sure paper and milk deliveries are stopped in your absence. Don't leave notes, and have a neighbor pick up your mail. If you plan to be away for a long period, arrange to have your lawn cut.

If you're driving, keep all doors locked and windows up. Leave the driver's window open only enough for the necessary ventilation. If, while you're stopped for a light, a man or men try to open the car door, run the light if you can do so safely, and blow your horn, loud and long.

Does your garage have a light that can be turned on before you go into it? Do you look around the garage and check the floor or the rear seat before you get into your car? If you park on the street this is even more important.

If you think someone is following you, look for a lighted house, go to the door and ring the bell as if that were your destination.

When shopping don't leave your purse lying on a counter. In a theater, keep your bag on your lap. Don't place it on a seat.

These precautions are simple to follow. If you're going to acquire habits, you'll be better off acquiring habits for safe living. You may find that they can save you not only from financial loss, but from tragedy or death.

Chosen for Carnegie Concert

STEPHEN STARKMAN — 11-year-old violinist son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael C. Starkman, 93 Florence Street, Kingston, will perform in the Annual Students' Concert at Manhattan's Carnegie Recital Hall on Saturday, May 24 at 8 p. m. Talented Stephen, a sixth grader at the Meagher School, is Concertmaster of the school's orchestra. Miss Terry Roberts, director of that orchestra, was responsible for seeing that he was entered in the competition. He is a violin student of Mark Baczinsky. (Photo by Kruh).

Hurley Library Group Plans Benefit Program

given according to the usual schedule. There will be tables, also, for those who do not wish to enter the tournament.

Refreshments will be served and there will be a profusion of door awards.

Tickets are available from any member of the Board of Trustees of the Library or may be purchased at the door.

Set Your Clocks Ahead

Daylight saving time will go into effect Sunday morning at 2 o'clock. For those who keep forgetting, clocks are to be pushed ahead one hour when you retire this evening, or Sunday morning. You will lose an hour's sleep in the deal, but it will come back to you in the fall when we go through the whole thing in reverse.

Designed to give more time for outdoor recreation, daylight saving is popular with sports enthusiasts, gardeners and picnickers, but not with farmers. Still despised by many farmers for a number of reasons, electrification of farms has somewhat lessened the controversy.

Moving the clocks ahead had a rough time for a long time, but it has steadily gained in popularity. National uniformity in the shift to daylight saving has reduced the frustration experienced by those going from one state to another. Congress has enacted a law directing all states—excepting those in which legislatures voted exemption—to observe daylight saving time for the six-month period starting the last Sunday in April and continuing until the last Sunday in October.

Spring ahead, fall back is an adage used as a reminder for setting time pieces at the beginning and conclusion of the daylight saving time period.

Guaranteed Income

The big drive social workers have adopted is for a guaranteed income. The 50,000 members of the National Association of Social Workers from all over the country, acting in convention at Atlantic City, decided to lobby for a guaranteed annual income as the way to eliminating poverty.

How soon, after the present poor are relieved of their poverty, will the taxpayers who are asked to support them replace them on the poverty rolls. No one will say.

The methods of banishing poverty have been offered before. What is different is that the nation's social workers have decided to lobby for them. They vary from a negative income tax, to replace the relief programs that involve federal, state and local governments, to a system of children's allowances which would apply to everyone, including taxpayers.

The idea is to provide a basic income floor for those not in the labor force or with work experience not sufficient to qualify them for adequate insurance benefits. Why have any qualifications at all? Just line them up at the window and pay them off.

Relief Residency Ban

While senior members of the Supreme Court dissented, the majority struck down state residency requirements for those receiving welfare assistance. The ruling is expected to make up to 200,000 people newly eligible for aid to families with dependent children, at a cost of up to $175 million a year.

In this instance, we rather think Chief Justice Earl Warren was right in his dissent, stating that he believed Congress had the power to impose minimal nationwide residency requirements or authorize the states to do so. The dean of the court, Justice Hugo Black, agreed, and Justice John Harlan dissented separately.

The ruling is bound to increase the migration from Southern states to populous states in the North, now that the newcomers do not have to wait before they can qualify for the more generous Northern aid. It will surely add to the money woes of these states, already pushed to the wall by the mounting cost of welfare.

Surely, Congress will consider laws that will equalize relief payments throughout the country. They are needed to cut down the migrations and the attractive moves, and to lift the increasing and almost unbearable burden from the more generous states before they are thrown into bankruptcy.

Coming Arms Surplus

When the war in Vietnam ends, there will be a vast pool of used arms for international trade. This will be added to in the early 1970s when NATO forces are re-equipped and present stores of arms become available.

Because of the cost of transportation, there will be little or no arms repatriated. In Southeast Asia, there will be ready buyers in South Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia and Singapore. Russian and Chinese arms also will find a market in nations in their sphere of influence.

Unfortunately, the dispersal of these arms cannot help but start an arms race in Southeast Asia, although, if wisely traded, they could be the means of strengthening it against a recurrence of the recent and current belligerence there.

These arms originally cost billions of dollars. They include all the modern instruments of war. If they could be buried, it would be a great service to peace. Since they cannot, we would expect they will help friends keep the peace, or meet outside threats.

"We'll Back You Up All the Way, Mon Ami!"

Henry J. Taylor Says

Death Watch of Trapped Hitler

On April 25, 1945, a death watch loomed. On April 30, 1945, Hitler committed suicide in his Berlin Reichschancellery air-raid bunker: potassium cyanide.

After withholding the facts and photographs for 23 years the Soviet Union last August revealed that Hitler's remains were officially certified to Stalin by May 11, 1945.

Complete dental and other verification was made by SMERSH, shades of James Bond, which was the colloquial name for a special Soviet counterintelligence group and is an acronym for the Russian words "Smert shpionam," which mean "death to spies."

As a reporter my problem at that 1945 hour was to assemble the mosaic of facts from my interview with Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering at the moment of his surrender at Augsburg, other captured Nazi leaders, Hitler's doctors and every official enemy record I could obtain.

I benefitted especially from a windfall. I was able to get transcriptions of conversations from the Fuehrerbunker in the final period even while they were being conducted. The Army group I was with had tapped its telephone and radio circuits.

German-speaking American officers were put on the lines. Frequently when the Germans in the bunker—including Hitler—thought they were issuing orders to a Nazi general they were really in contact with a boy from Brooklyn.

Trapped Hitler communicated constantly—deciding everything, snarling orders no one could fulfill, trembling and shouting for hours and then sitting in absolute silence, as though frozen, while his world collapsed around him.

Hitler's three chief medical attendants—chubby Dr. Theodor Morell, his personal physician in the Reichschancellery; Dr. Johann Gebhardt, chief of the SS Medical Corps; and Dr. Ludwig Stumpfecker, Hitler's surgeon—each told me that from July 20, 1944, the date of the officers' attempted bomb assassination, Hitler suffered from tremors, could not use his right arm effectively and developed a permanent stoop. None, they said, was a true physical ailment. In Dr. Morell's words all three were "anxiety neurosis—a conversion of hysteria."

Eva Braun had arrived April 18. Hitler contrasted her devotion with those "false men" who were leaving his side, and as is well known, married her there. "She is a blessing to Germany," he told Admiral Voss.

A great deal of excitement was created within the grey walls by individual enemy artillery fire. Hitler found it was coming from Marzahn, 12 kilometers from the center of the city. He telephoned a flabbergasted sublieutenant at Luftwaffe headquarters to send nonexistent Jagverbund Air Group 44 from Munich to silence the guns. His brow covered with nervous sweat Hitler takes this occasion to shriek that he has dismissed Goering and ordered him arrested.

Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl tells him the American enemy is advancing from Lubben to Bayreuth (Gen. George S. Patton) and that its tanks are at Juterbog; that Russian forces have infiltrated Berlin's outskirts and that the artillery fire is rapidly becoming a barrage. The escape road south is closed. That night there are 11 direct artillery hits on the chancellery.

On April 24 ends a conference room meeting at 4:30 with his first statement of his personal plans, shaped by the events of the previous day "If Berlin falls," he says, "I will die here."

On April 25 Hitler issues the last formal order of his life, in six detailed sections, "having composed it all given dinners for the Vice President, the Speaker and the Chief Justice jointly. But Nixon gave one for Warren alone, even inviting all the Warren children and ex-Gov. "Pat" Brown of California, who once defeated Nixon.

Nixon's tribute to Warren is all the more significant a reversal because, as a young Senator and delegate from California, Nixon worked from inside the California delegation during the 1952 Republican National Convention to pull the rug out from under Gov. Warren's candidacy for President. Nixon at that time was bound by written pledge to be for Warren.

However, the responsibilities of the presidency change men, and Richard

On April 29 Hitler has all Fuehrerbunker documents burned in the chancellery courtyard. He tells Goebbels and Frau Magda Goebbels, surrounded by their six children, "I cannot take part in the street fighting for physical reasons and, in any case, do not propose to fall into the hands of the Russians." He repeats this to armaments minister Albert Speer and to Frau Gertrud Jung, von Ribbentrop's sister, "even my body."

He announces, "All of you are free to leave (as though leaving were possible). When the last moment comes those adults who remain are to kill their children and commit suicide" (which all the Goebbelses did).

This was his one obsession: not to fall into Russian hands. Hitler believed (probably correctly) that the Russians would put him in a cage and parade him through the streets of Moscow. To all else in his final hours he was indifferent.

In this way the death watch began.

Now Ghana is much smaller and weaker than North Korea. At last count the population stood at eight million. Its military forces are estimated at 17,000, with a reserve Workers Brigade of 7,500.

The Ghanaian navy has two corvettes, three minesweepers, a training ship and a new frigate either at hand or on the way.

The Ghanaian Air Force has 17 transports, 17 helicopters, a communications unit of six planes and some training planes at its flying school.

Russia certainly did not have to fear that Britain or the United States would rush to defend Ghana militarily.

Yet the Russians were frustrated. There's no doubt North Korea's capture of the Pueblo, the torture of its crew and the subsequent shooting down of a U.S. Navy reconnaissance plane with 31 lives lost were far more serious matters than the taking of the Soviet fishing vessels, even though they were of a type the Russians frequently use for espionage.

Nevertheless, this incident demonstrates how the Russians, who invaded Czechoslovakia, find themselves frustrated when challenged by a tiny nation half a continent

Drew Pearson Says Nixon Gives Special Dinner For Chief Justice Warren

Beginning March 24, Drew Pearson wrote a series of columns regarding the Justice Department's dismissal of the El Paso Natural Gas anti-trust case, a company which paid the Nixon law firm $771,129.83 from 1961-67. Pearson reported that President Nixon and the new Attorney General, John Mitchell, were senior partners in the Nixon law firm, and that the case was dismissed on January 26, six days after the Nixon administration took office.

On April 21, the Supreme Court announced an unusual decision resuming jurisdiction of the El Paso Natural Gas monopoly case.

WASHINGTON — Richard Nixon has made several important right-about-faces since he became President, but none more important than his attitude toward Chief Justice Earl Warren.

He urged the Senate to ratify the non-proliferation pact with Soviet Russia after advocating delay during the campaign because of Russian bulldozing of Czechoslovakia. He played it cool regarding North Korea after chiding LBJ for letting a "fourth-rate military power" seize the USS Pueblo.

And after blistering the Supreme Court all during his campaign, he proposed a special toast to the Chief Justice at the Gridiron Club and this week gave a special dinner in Warren's honor.

Johnson and Kennedy had given dinners for the Vice President, the Speaker and the Chief Justice jointly. But Nixon gave one for Warren alone, even inviting all the Warren children and ex-Gov. "Pat" Brown of California, who once defeated Nixon.

Nixon's tribute to Warren is all the more significant a reversal because, as a young Senator and delegate from California, Nixon worked from inside the California delegation during the 1952 Republican National Convention to pull the rug out from under Gov. Warren's candidacy for President. Nixon at that time was bound by written pledge to be for Warren.

However, the responsibilities of the presidency change men, and Richard Nixon has changed even during his few months in the White House.

Change on Supreme Court?

The big question is whether he will change the Supreme Court. He will have the opportunity soon to appoint the successor to Warren as Chief Justice. That one vacancy can radically change the decisions of the court and the policies of the country.

There will be other vacancies. But the first, filling Warren's shoes will be the most crucial. Will Nixon bow to the John Birch Society billboards dotting Southern highways reading "Impeach Earl Warren" and appoint a reactionary? Will he pick a right-wing lawyer, Roger Robb, Otepka's attorney, whom Nixon has placed on the U.S. Court of Appeals? Or will he pick a moderate such as his cool-headed Secretary of State, William P. Rogers?

The entire economic and social course of the United States will turn on that choice.

Take the Warren court's one-man-one-vote decision that the cities must have the same representation in state legislatures as rural areas. This was a decision which went to the root cause of decay in our big cities. For more than 100 years New York, Chicago, Philadelphia have suffered because of inequality of representation in the legislatures in Albany, Springfield and Harrisburg, resulting in their inability to get their share of appropriations.

In the five years since the Supreme Court's decree, this inequality had begun to be rectified. It will take many more than five years, however, to wipe out the neglect and inequality of the past.

Unequal Justice

Some of the most criticized of the Warren court's decisions have pertained to criminal cases. If you study these, they do not protect criminals, they give equality of justice to the poor as well as the rich.

The Mallory decision remedied the custom of rounding up dozens of suspects, usually young Negroes, and keeping them in jail all night in order to face police line-ups in the morning. A wealthy youth, when arrested, can call his parents and get an immediate lawyer or bond. The poor arrestee has to spend the night in jail. And though usually released after the line-up next morning, he had to go back and explain to his employer why he was not at work—even though no charge had been placed against him. Sometimes it cost him his job.

Following the Mallory decision, arrested suspects must have a charge brought against them within a reasonable time. Otherwise, they cannot be kept in jail all night.

In the Miranda case, also severely criticized, the Supreme Court gave to a Mexican youth in Arizona the same right to consult a lawyer already enjoyed by wealthy suspects. Any educated arrestee knows that he has the right of counsel. The uneducated arrestee does not. What the Miranda case did was to give the ignorant Mexican the right to be informed that he had a right to a lawyer, thereby setting a standard of equality for all men, rich or poor. This had been guaranteed by the Constitution, but hitherto never granted.

One of the most criticized opinions ever delivered by the Warren court was the prayer decision. It was also one of the most misunderstood.

The court did not ban the Bible from public schools, but rather government-written prayer. The state, the court decreed, should not be in the business of decreeing what students should pray. Under the constitutional provision for the separation of church and state, this is for clergymen to decide in the churches, not the government in public schools.

Many people will argue whether Gen. Eisenhower's appointment of Earl Warren as Chief Justice was good or bad. But few will disagree that it was like's single most important domestic act.

It equalized the balance between rich and poor, between white and black, between ignorant and educated more than any other Supreme Court in American history.

President Nixon may want to reverse that balance. As President he has the power to do so. But, in the long run, history will probably change the balance back again. And history will also judge Nixon accordingly.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Leaving the 11 Old South states out of the calculating, President Nixon in the 1968 election sustained fairly substantial percentage losses from his 1960 performance in at least two-thirds of the nation's major suburban complexes.

This conclusion can be drawn from an analysis of summary figures and tables made by this reporter from the biennial election report of the Republican National Committee.

The committee's report sets forth election results from the country's 35 largest metropolitan areas, which accounted for 41 per cent of the total national presidential vote last November.

Six of these are in Old South states. Of the remaining 29, no comparative 1968-1960 figures are available in seven cases and Nixon's suburban percentage was roughly the same as before in three others. His vote diminished proportionately in the other 19.

The indications are that the damage was done to Nixon in these suburban zones by third-party candidate George Wallace rather than the Democratic nominee, Hubert Humphrey. Little evidence exists to suggest the latter was a stronger suburban candidate than the late John F. Kennedy eight years earlier.

Though neither the GOP's new summary nor anybody else's figures are wholly satisfying in their detail, they are sufficient in force to suggest that the President's mid-summer fears of a Wallace northern suburban vote raid were not altogether misplaced.

Those fears had much to do with his choice of Vice President Spiro Agnew as his running mate. It was felt Agnew's then-emerging conservative image could help Nixon blunt Wallace in the North. (The President, of course, also saw Agnew as a counterweight in the New South.)

Wallace's 8.23 per cent of the total vote in the 39 non-South states is misleading. About a third of his 4,826,000 total in those 39 came in four big ones—California, Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

California and Ohio alone gave Wallace 950,000. In Ohio his 467,000 represented 12 per cent of the state total, highest anywhere outside the South except for border states and a thinly populated western states.

In the Los Angeles—Long Beach suburbs, Wallace ran up 101,000 votes. Around Chicago he compiled 125,000. Detroit's suburban fringe put 117,500 in the Wallace column. Cincinnati and Cleveland environs together gave him 113,000, while two Pennsylvania cities—Philadelphia and Pittsburgh—saw their suburbs add 110,000 and 86,000, respectively, to Wallace total.

St. Louis suburbs contributed 83,000, Baltimore's 51,000, those around Newark, 46,100.

Maryland and Washington state, which went narrowly for Humphrey, might have turned for Nixon but for the Wallace suburban vote. (In the South Wallace's 584,000 votes obviously kept Texas' 25 electoral votes out of the Nixon column.)

Pennsylvania, a much bigger prize than most with its 29 electoral votes, might also have gone for Nixon instead of, surprisingly, into Humphrey's total—were it not for the nearly 200,000 suburban votes picked off by Wallace in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

In some suburban sectors, Nixon's percentage losses were not minor. He slid 3.5 points in the San Francisco Bay area, nearly 8 around Detroit, almost 8 around Minnesota's Twin Cities, 3.5 in the huge New York area, 6 around Buffalo, 8 in the Columbus, O., area, 9 in the Cincinnati suburbs, 7 around Pittsburgh, 4.5 outside Philadelphia.

These declines in percentage showings from his previous 1960 race clearly contributed to the closeness of his victories in such crucial electoral-vote states as Illinois, Ohio and New Jersey.

No one will be able to prove the extent of the "Agnew effect" on Wallace's northern suburban vote. But the figures suggest Nixon might have suffered there much more with a liberal at his side.

3 Big Mouths Trouble

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I'm the kind of wife who tells her husband everything. And I am married to the kind of son who tells his mother everything. Well, his mother has a big mouth, and she's the kind of woman who tells everybody everything. So now everyone in town knows all my personal business. How do you suggest I go about getting Friend Husband to keep his trap shut? Or maybe I should tell his mother to keep HERS shut.

NO PRIVACY
DEAR NO: I have a better idea. Why not simply things and keep YOURS shut?

DEAR ABBY: I have it on very good authority that up until about 50 years ago it was the custom for Eskimo women to leave their villages just before their babies were due, go off by themselves, and give birth all alone.

This seems to be a very barbaric practice, and I can't figure out the reason for it. I know it is true because someone who has lived above the Arctic circle for more than 50 years told me this himself.

What are the facts?
DEAR CURIOUS: The facts (as obtained for me from Mr. Robert B. Atwood, my esteemed friend and editor and publisher of the Anchorage Daily Times) are:

"No one has any proof that such a custom ever existed. Father John P. Fox, a Catholic priest, who has spent 50 years in the Arctic Circle stated:

"Once, 43 years ago I knew a young Eskimo woman who left her village to have her child alone. The reason, she was 19, unmarried and didn't want anyone to know of her disgrace. She had been running around with a native trader who had THREE wives. The baby apparently died at birth or shortly after, and was hidden somewhere out on the tundra by the young mother. That is the only such case I have ever heard of."

"That so-called 'custom' is in a class with the 'wife-swapping' stories one hears about the Eskimos, and the practice of 'loaning' one's wife to a guest. An occasional drunken native may have used his friend's wife, but that would hardly make it a custom."

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine has owed me $100 for a very long time. I have had no success in collecting even a part of it, so I decided to get even with him. I borrowed his library card and checked out an arm load of magazines, from which I tore all the articles I wanted.

On one of my visits to the library, I met a young librarian for whom I fell very hard. He was most attentive at first, and I know he was about to ask me out when he learned of my vandalism. Since then he has been very cold and unfriendly. Should I explain to him the circumstances, or what?

NEEDS ADVICE
DEAR NEEDS: What could you "explain"? Your childish retaliation trick? I doubt if the young librarian would feel that your vandalism was justified. Putting another further into debt is a strange way of collecting what is owed you.

DEAR ABBY: I received a telephone call the other evening. A woman with a pleasant voice asked for me by name, so of course I let her talk. She said she couldn't tell me who she was, but she thought I should know that my husband was stepping out with a woman he works with.

It would have really upset me terribly except that I'M NOT MARRIED!

Continue to tell your readers to pay no attention to nuts who make anonymous phone calls.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

JOHN HEITZMAN is keeping his latest poll (about City Hall) quiet and if the results are anything like the last poll on the same subject, we can readily understand why.

According to a press release from Heitzman, the First Ward's Democratic alderman, he is polling every tenth resident of his ward, regardless of party affiliation (and we presume, race, color or creed), on whether or not they want a city hall Downtown.

The First Ward is decidedly Uptown, in fact if you go any further up, you wind up in the Town of Ulster. John Machione took a similar survey in his ward, the Second, last year, and found the voters going about nine to one against a city hall Downtown.

Heitzman says he'll keep his results a secret until the Council actually votes on the issue, which is good thinking on his part.

As it is, Mayor Garraghan is on the thin edge of defeat with his city hall plans. In order to pass a bond issue, he would need ten votes of the Common Council and if the vote were taken today, three aldermen, Machione, Pete Mancuso and Joe Conlin, would vote against it.

THE MAYOR may have been somewhat presumptuous in thinking that the other ten would go for it. If Heitzman were to publish the results of his survey, odds are that it would show basically the same thing as Machione's did last year.

A Democratic alderman's first duty is not to his Democratic mayor, it is to himself, namely to get himself elected. And in an election year, the politicians are all for the people in hopes that their warm regards for their constituents will be returned at the ballot box.

Heitzman's "no" would be enough to defeat a bond issue but there are many degrees of defeat. It could get a lot worse once word on Heitzman's poll filters over to the Fifth and Sixth Wards where Don Quirk and Jack Finch are attempting to prove this year that their landslide victories last year were no flukes.

FORTUNATELY, for all concerned, there is enough political savvy in the Democratic party to hold the whole thing until after the November elections.

Garraghan appears to be playing the delaying game, along with the Council, judging from the two latest stories on city hall. One had Ray being "shocked" over the latest elevation of Meadow Street. The other calls for a separate police facility with federal aid picking up half the tab.

We wonder just how much of a jolt the Meadow Street elevation was to the mayor, considering contracts for the work were let over a year ago.

As far as dickering with the federal government over the police department, that could take four or five months, which isn't really too bad, depending how you look at it.

We expect there'll be periodic stories on "progress" on city hall accompanied by mayoral condemnations on whatever or whomever is holding up the show. Unfortunately, this game has been in town for the past four years and we find a lot of people getting just a bit weary of it.

WE FIND Jim Tyrrell's statements on future city budgets interesting from a number of viewpoints. He appears to be accentuating the positive, much as he said he would in his acceptance speech the night he was nominated. He doesn't attack anyone, just offers positive programs.

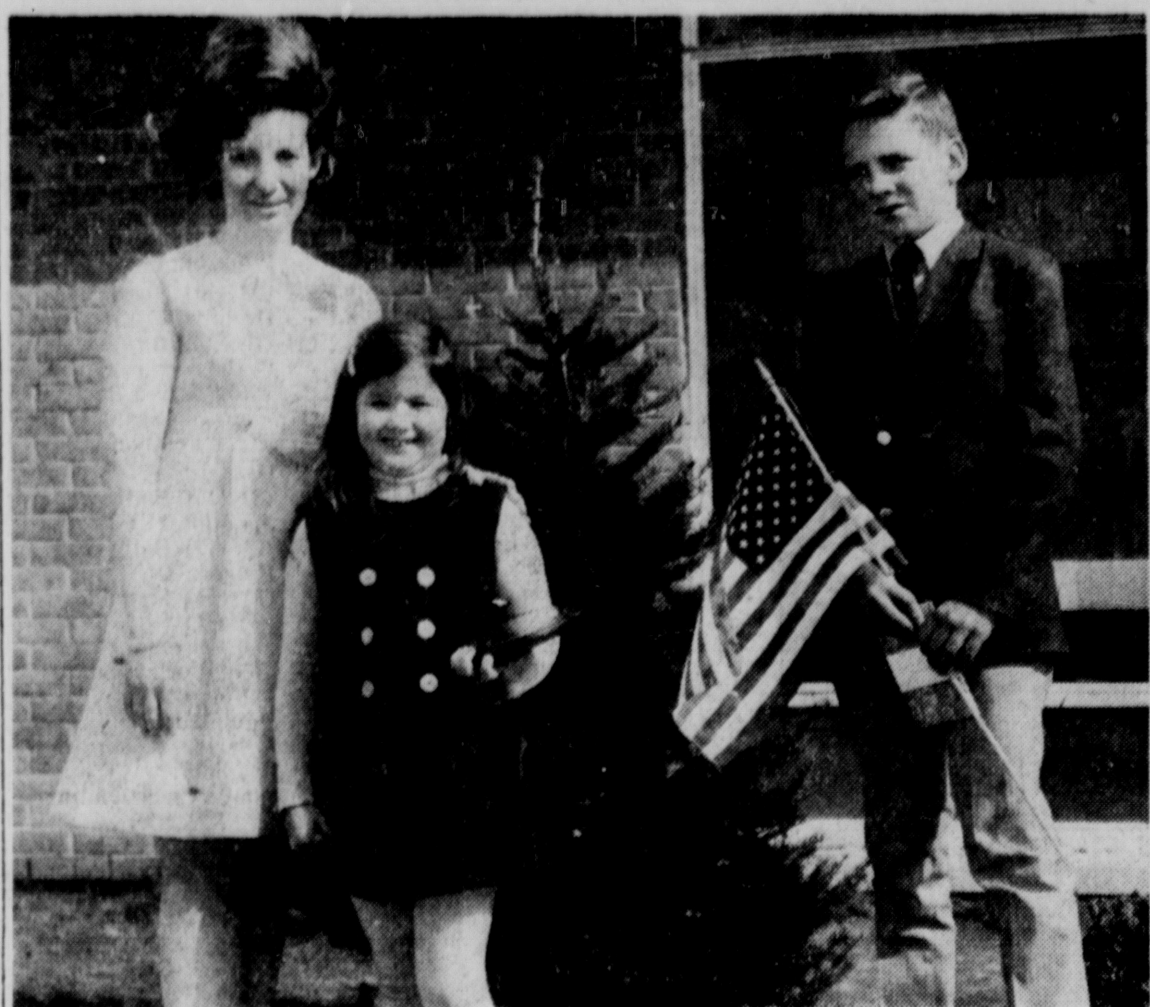

For instance, the budget statement, Tyrrell offers a line budget, or an item by item budget. To a lot of people this is a good idea. It gives one a better idea of how city money is being spent. What Tyrrell doesn't mention is that Mayor Garraghan has refused to offer a line budget, in fact has refused to offer any additional information on his budget. Who can forget Garraghan's burst of "I've got money hidden in this budget." Very clever, that Tyrrell.

CITY BITS—We see that another testimonial dinner is being planned for John Dyson, defeated Democrat candidate for congressman last year. That makes at least three that we know of since Dyson went down for the count. Maybe it pays to lose.

Garraghan's now in Rome. Before leaving, he denied that he would ask for a Papal blessing on his race for governor.

DIFFICULT TIME—Dave Cunningham (L) of Corpus Christi, Tex., and Dale Borman, of Peru, Ind., have a difficult time as they dig to find Lost River in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. The heavy snow accumulation made it hard to find this popular "summer" attraction which is scheduled to open May 17. Workers have been shoveling away the snow which is up to 14 feet deep on the ground. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Rocky Favors Bixby As State GOP Chief

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — R. Burdell Bixby, a prominent figure in Thomas E. Dewey's state administration, was reported today to be Gov. Rockefeller's choice for the Republican state chairman's job.

Party sources said Friday that Rockefeller had asked Bixby to take the reins from Charles A. Schoeneck, who has told the governor he wishes to return to his law practice in Syracuse.

Bixby, a Hudson resident now serving as chairman of the State Thruway Authority, was said to be giving serious consideration to Rockefeller's request.

Schoeneck is expected to leave the $30,000-a-year chairmanship shortly before the GOP's annual statewide fundraising dinner, set for June 5 in New York City.

Bixby, 54, served as secretary to the governor during the last five years as Dewey's administration. He left office with Dewey and became a partner in Dewey's New York City law firm—Dewey, Ballantine, Bushby, Palmer and Wood.

R. BURDELL BIXBY

Previously Bixby had held important positions on the staffs of GOP Assembly leaders. He has maintained wide contacts in New York GOP circles and is held in high regard by professional politicians of both major parties.

Rockefeller was said to be eager to secure Bixby's services in planning for the state-wide elections of 1970, when Rockefeller will be up for reelection.

Another Thruway Authority member, former Assemblyman Edwin J. Fehrenbach of Bethpage, had been touted by Nassau County Republicans for the chairman's job. But Rockefeller was reluctant to depart from the tradition of installing an upstate man in the post. The Nassau GOP informed that governor that Bixby was completely acceptable.

Soldiers Hit Generals On Reorganization of Dems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three soldiers in the 1968 political wars have indicated the political generals could have been much more forceful in their proposals for reforming the Democratic party.

The three—citizens who fought in last year's campaign—started their testimony before a Democratic party reform commission Friday by expressing disappointment at the statements of earlier key witnesses which included Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, Edmund S. Muskie and Eugene J. McCarthy.

"It all turns into a lot of words," said Adam Walinsky, an aide to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. "It all seems so far from the reality of where this country is."

"I have heard this morning from leaders of this party extolling the virtues of participation," said Curtis B. Gans, a top worker in McCarthy's presidential campaign. "As a participant, I have come here to call for leadership."

Also apparently unimpressed by what he had heard earlier at the hearing was Mrs. Patricia Saltonstall.

'Very Bland'

"It was very bland," said the woman who was convicted last week of disorderly conduct during the demonstrations that swept Chicago the week of the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

The three rank-and-file party members took the stand after the crowds and cameras had left the ornate Senate Caucus Room where the reform commission headed by Sen. George McGovern held the first in a series of hearings to get views on what is wrong with the Democratic party.

Kennedy, McCarthy and Muskie addressed themselves to reforming political machinery and processes, appealing respectively for rank-and-file approval of reform recommendations, party conventions as often as every year and restructuring of party apparatus to make it more responsive to national, regional and local problems.

Viet Big Problem

Gans said leadership is needed, which understands "that at present the thing most gnawing at the American conscience is not Biafra, the Indians or even the ABM. It is the war in Vietnam."

Like most who testified, Mrs.

Saltonstall raised the issue of the violence surrounding the convention last August.

"I hear it said that the Democratic leadership wants to forget Chicago," she said, adding "I'm sure it would."

"If this commission and those leaders seriously intend to attract the young and the powerless," she went on, "they had better discuss Chicago again and again."

Assembly Passes Wilson Park Bill

BEARSVILLE

A bill calling for the naming of state lands in Wittenberg as the Kenneth L. Wilson State Park, and introduced by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, was passed unanimously in the state Assembly.

In speaking on the floor of the Assembly in behalf of the bill, Bell states "Many of you knew Ken personally. He served in this House for 16 years from 1953 to 1968. During 25 years of public life he made many great civic contributions as town supervisor from 1944 to 1953 and as majority leader of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors.

"Ken worked for many years to gain state approval for the state park in Ulster County.

During his last years in office his hard work culminated in designating state lands in Wittenberg as a state park.

"Because of his many great civic contributions as one of Ulster County's most outstanding citizens, it would be truly fitting to name the state lands in Wittenberg the Kenneth L. Wilson State Park," Bell said.

Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea, close personal friend of the former assemblyman, said he was most proud to cast a "yes" vote. The applauding assemblage gave unanimous approval.

The measure now goes before the State Senate where Sen. Jay P. Rolison will personally report the bill and request prompt action.

Several Persons Are Injured; Area Mishaps

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON

Several persons were injured as the result of a rash of motor vehicle accidents investigated by area authorities on Friday and early today.

A three-car collision at 9:20 p.m. Friday on Route 299 at the intersection of North Ohioville Road, New Paltz, injured a 23-year-old woman passenger in one vehicle and resulted in a citation for a driver. Gay B. Glazier, of Madison, N. J., was taken to Vassar Hospital and treated for scalp lacerations. She was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Margaret M. Dewire, 45, of Grahamsville, according to a report of Trooper P. A. Koenig, who cited the driver for failure to yield the right of way.

Trooper Koenig said the other vehicles were driven by John Currie Jr., 22, of Highland, and Frederick J. Wetjen, 32, of New Paltz. They were not injured.

Two women were injured at 3 p.m. Friday when the car in which they were riding went out of control on the State Thruway six miles north of Saugerties and overturned on the mall. They were Barbara Gentile, 26, of Metropolitan Avenue, Bronx, driver of the car, who sustained facial cuts and a fractured nose, and a passenger Maureen O'Connell, 25, of Brooklyn, who received head injuries. Trooper J. A. Turck reported the women were treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital.

Joseph Gorman, 19, of Jamaica, L. I., was injured at 1 a.m. today when his car was involved in a collision with a tractor-trailer on the State Thruway near Saugerties. He was treated at Benedictine Hospital for lacerations of the lips which required several sutures, according to a report of Trooper J. F. Ryan of Troop T. The truck was driven by Maynard Moore, 44, of 138 Linden Street, Schenectady. Both vehicles were southbound at the time of the mishap.

Three men were injured at 6 p.m. Friday in a two-car crash on the Taconic Parkway at Bull's Head Road, Town of Clinton. Rhinebeck troopers said the vehicles were driven by Victor Evans, 48, of 100 Winnikee Avenue, Poughkeepsie, and Donald Hearst, 55, of Route 2, Box 122-A, Rhinebeck.

Injured and treated at St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie, were Evans, lacerations of the left knee; Hearst, injuries of the right leg and shoulder and scalp lacerations, and Bruce Lane, 28, of 102 Mansion Street, Poughkeepsie, injuries of the left leg. Troopers cited Hearst for failure to yield the right of way.

A two-car accident occurred at 3:15 p.m. yesterday on Main Street at the intersection of Emerson Street. The vehicles were driven by Mattie Hofbauer, 32, of 347 South Wall Street, and David H. Lattin, 21, of 49 Sheridan Street, Danbury, Conn. Police reports noted that Deborah Van Vleck, 17, of Danbury, a passenger in Lattin's car was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance, and treated for injuries of the legs.

RHINEBECK

The Rhinebeck Historical Society is currently engaged in a mammoth project of locating houses of 1798.

"A Map of the Town of Rhinebeck, in the County of Dutchess," is the appellation of a surveyor's map with tiny houses drawn in. The map contains such designations as Elmdorf's Inn, Crum Elbow Creek, Schultz's Landing, Col. Livingston's Saw Mill, Chancellor's Grist Mill, and Radcliff's Landing.

The task of the Historical Society is to find if these tiny map houses still remain, even in ruins. If this proves hopeless, the information on the site must serve in stead.

The Town of Rhinebeck in 1798 included what is now Red Hook and was bordered on the north by Clermont, on the east by Northeast, and on the south by Clinton.

The scale on the ancient map reads "Forty chains to an inch."

At Friday evening's meeting, the possibility of joining the Dutchess County Landmarks Association was discussed. The county society met Saturday morning with representatives from all over the county, in a symposium entitled "Organizing for Historical and Architectural Preservation," at Marist College.

Richard Crowley, Rhinebeck Historical Society president and local architect, represented his group as a member of the conference.

Kenneth R. Toole, Assistant Dutchess County Planner, is chairman of the county association.

A countywide study will have the Rhinebeck group responsible for Northwestern Dutchess in a workshop group, endeavoring to isolate sites worthy of landmarks.

Parade Correction

Alfred L. Quinn, a 50-year member in Rosendale-Tillon American Legion Post 1219, was incorrectly identified as grand marshal of the County American Legion parade to be held in Rosendale Sunday. Quinn will serve as first division grand marshal.

'Planet of Walnut' on Exhibit

One of the most unusual sculpture exhibitions of this or any other year, featuring the work of Gardiner sculptor Mark Ulrich, will open shortly in New York City. The Irving Trust Company, as a public service, will host a major exhibit of massive wood sculpture by Ulrich, 31-year-old Hudson Valley artist. Ulrich's "Planet of Walnut" will be shown at the 245 Park Avenue (47th Street) branch of the bank from May 1-21.

Because of the spaciousness as well as size of Ulrich's carvings, few galleries (with their limited space) are capable of properly showing the full "Planet of Walnut." For that very reason, the Manhattan bank invited this remarkable young man to show his equally remarkable work in their ideally spacious offices.

And "Planet of Walnut" is remarkable. Carved from New York State black walnut, it is a single piece of wood more than 10 feet high and three feet in diameter. It fits into a pedestal three feet by four feet; represents three years of hard work by Ulrich, who conceived of the project as a way of utilizing the natural beauty and power of the black walnut wood to subtly convey space age ideas.

Previous Shows

The area sculptor has had one-man shows at the Sculpture Center in New York, where only a part of his "Planet of Walnut" could be shown, and at the D. E. Kendall Art Galleries, Wellfleet, Mass. He has also shown at the Provincetown Art Association, Provincetown, Mass., the Albany Institute of History and Art, Albany, and at Mari and Polari Galleries, both in Woodstock.

Born in St. Paul, Minn., Ulrich worked at a series of "unartistic" jobs before turning to sculpture. He has been "roughneck" on oil rigs in New Mexico, laborer and truck driver on construction crews in North Dakota, ranch hand in Montana, bartender in Seattle, Washington, and newspaper reporter in Fargo, North Dakota. A student of literature at Minnesota's Moorhead State College and the University of Minnesota, he attended college on a football scholarship.

Ulrich came to the Hudson Valley six years ago; began carving wood while supporting himself as a weekend waiter at Kerhonkson's Granit Hotel. He now lives and works on a forested mountainside in Gardiner, near New Paltz; is rapidly gaining a formidable reputation for his massive and beautiful work throughout the east.

Host of Tub Styles:

When 'Bathing' Meant Medicinal Treatment

Bathing, like most aspects of life, is subject to the whim of fashion. And just opened as the first special exhibit of the 1969 season of Museum Village of Smith's Clove, Monroe, N. Y., is a display of 19th century bath tubs, foot baths, assorted basins and bathing accessories in an exhibit entitled "Cleanliness Is..."

The bathing artifacts in this exhibit date from the late 19th century when bathing was once more gaining popularity. For a long time popular notion was that bathing except for specific medicinal reasons weakened one's constitution. So bathing for cleanliness' sake was avoided. "Cleanliness Is..." displays a host of bath tub styles, sizes and materials of manufacture. Exhibited are baby baths, sponge baths and foot baths made of tin as well as earthenware, footbaths, wash pitchers and bowls with Rockingham glaze.

One of the more unique items on view in "Cleanliness Is..." is a folding bath tub which was patented in 1890. This full-sized tub has a wooden cabinet around it. When not in use the tub folded up against the wall, hiding behind a wardrobe-like facade, a water reservoir and kerosene heater.

Museum Village of Smith's Clove opened its 20th season earlier this month. The hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends. The Museum is located on Route 17, four miles west of Exit 16 on the New York Thruway.

New Book from Woodstock Press

Woodstock's sometime controversial Retort Press has just published a collection of poems titled Slide-Images, the work of local writer Mary Humphrey Baldrige.

Mrs. Baldrige has had most of her work published in Canada. Her short stories have been broadcast over the CBC, Toronto, and have appeared in The Montrealer. She has had several one-act plays produced in Canada as well, including a radio play and one published by the University of Alberta.

The Retort Press, operated by Holley Cantine, first ran from 1942 to '52 as a magazine of the same name. In '52 and '54 it published the still famous Wasp, a weekly paper. Other noteworthy Retort publications include Prison Etiquette, an anthology of prison writings of Conscientious Objectors to World War II, and a book of poetry, Outside Time, by Dachine Rainier.

Slide-Images is available in Woodstock at the Catskill Book Shop, The Juggler, and The Gilded Carriage.

An Everyday Miracle

"There's something soothing and reassuring in her contemplation of that miracle of everyday phenomena, the turning of this earth, the setting of the sun, the rising of the moon." That's Art Magazine talking about the "Time Zone" series of paintings produced by one time Woodstock resident and exhibitor Anne Helioff. The series is aimed at interpreting the transformation of color and light which takes place within the course of 24 hours, and is being featured in an exhibition of recent paintings by Miss Helioff at the Capricorn Gallery, 11 West 56th Street, New York City, this month and next.

The exhibit is her first one-man showing in New York; is now on view through May 10. In the past she has had numerous displays of her work in such places as Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, New York University, Washington's National Gallery, Berkshire Museum, Albany's Museum of Art, Riverside Museum, Lever House Capricorn Gallery in group shows, and others.

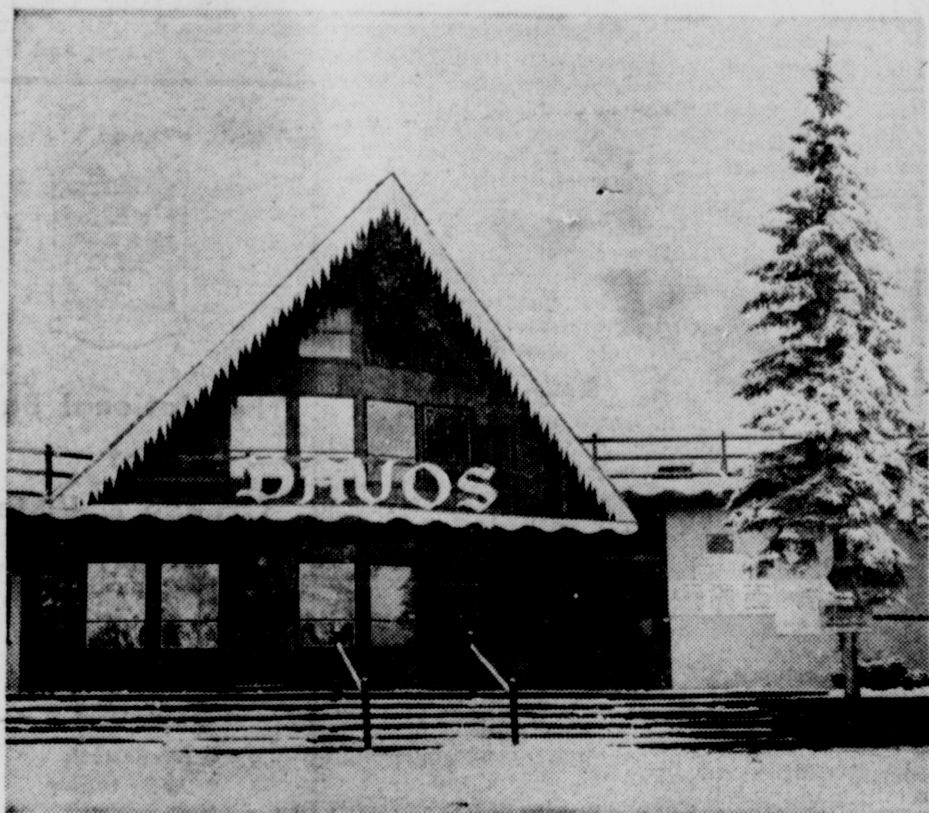

Born in England, artist Helioff has studied and worked in New York, Iowa and Mexico. Oil is her medium and her element. Her major concerns are with the radiance of light and space dimensions. of her abstract paintings, Woodstock artist Lucile Blanch has said: "She makes us freshly aware of the cosmos that we are a part of, its geometry, the inevitability of its movements, its silences, its vastness"

But Big Vanilla Is Not ALL Mouth

7-THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, APR. 26, 1969

LODGE ENTRANCE at Big Vanilla at Davos had an Alpine look during last winter's snows.

Mark Fleishman is young, enterprising and full of ideas. He is also intrigued with mouths; studied hundreds before selecting the one that holds the center of attention in the center of the black dance floor of his furlined discotheque, Mouth. Mouth is at Big Vanilla at Davos in nearby Woodridge and, unique as it may be as discos go, it's only one of the multiple attractions of this area resort.

Big Vanilla gained fame this winter as a newly re-done ski area — the largest in the Southern Catskills, to be exact. And with its eight lifts, 17 slopes, trails up to 14,000 feet, resident St. Bernard dog with keg wandering picturesquely up and down the mountain, sleighs, and open-hearth steakhouse called Thaw, it replaced Vermont's mountains in the affections of many. Season's passes for single adults, families and junior/student types were comparatively inexpensive, and there weren't many other bars that put a hot fire-poker in your grog to warm it.

But now that the annual spring thaw has closed the ski areas in our part of the country, a startling metamorphosis is underway at Big V. T-bars and chairlifts are making way for horses, ski trails are becoming bridle paths, and ski lodges are turning into bunk houses. What was once a schussing-slamming paradise will shortly be the Big Vanilla Ranch Resort, opening May 2 for its first full season of western-style, fun and relaxation.

Owners Mark and Alan Fleischman envision their new undertaking on a year round basis as a recreational retreat for the entire family. Only 90 miles from New York City, it'll attract metropolitan vacationers and, just across the Ulster-Sullivan

HORSEBACK RIDERS can look forward to playing musical chairs at the Woodridge resort when it begins its year 'round schedule.

VOLLEYBALL and poolside loafing will be among the attractions at Big Vanilla during the spring and summer seasons.

BIG VANILLA'S newly re-done ski area, the largest in the Southern Catskills, boomed all winter; will now make way for horses and bridle paths.

BOOKS

Don't Make the Mistake of Being a 'Nice Guy'

THE ANGRY BOOK. By Theodore Isaac Rubin, M.D. MacMillan. $4.95.

There are times when an ordinary normal citizen wants to kick the stuffing out of someone or something, because there has been an offense that he cannot tolerate. Anger has its justifications, and this book is about anger.

Well, it's all right to blow your stack over a real offense. It's much better to release the anger than to let it fester inside you. In simplified terms, that is the gist of the message in this book. It tells you that suppression of the normal emotion of anger leads to all sorts of backlash and that harms both the individual and everyone around him.

Blow Your Cool

Rubin's position is that too many of us make a mistake in trying to be a "nice guy" for the sake of social status; that too many of us "keep our cool" because we think we must maintain "control."

The suppression of anger, he argues, results in a "slush fund" of unrelieved hatred and resentment that poisons the individual leading often to psychosomatic illnesses and sometimes erupts later into dangerous outbursts against innocent victims.

The author offers no patented formula for alleviating all these problems, but he does suggest that anger is something we can all cope with if we understand it.

Dr. Rubin is an author (he wrote "Lisa and David" and several other books) and a practicing psychiatrist who has an uncommon gift of communicating with the reader in simple, a-b-c terminology, and his case examples strike home effectively. What he has to say here about the healthy and sick varieties of anger is an illuminating, revelatory document.

Analysing the Czech Invasion

PRAGUE'S 200 DAYS. By Harry Schwartz. Praeger, $5.95.

Here is a very thorough analysis of what happened before, during and after the Russian-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Kremlin-watcher Schwartz goes back to 1948 to summarize the events and influences that led to the crisis of 1968, including the "confessions" and show trials that shook Czechoslovakia in 1953-54.

Next he considers the rising pressures against First Secretary Novotny in the first 10 months of 1967, and the actual revolution that took place between Oct. 30, 1967, and Jan. 5, 1968, resulting in Novotny's "resignation" and the rise of Dubcek.

The 200 Days

The 200 days between Novotny's fall and the arrival of the Russian tanks are reconstructed painstakingly from every available scrap of evidence. Schwartz characterizes the rapid strides made under Dubcek toward a liberalization of the government—"a milestone in the history of human freedom and, particularly, in the evolution of Communist parties and ideologies toward greater humanism."

The author interprets Russia's miscalculations over Czechoslovakia as due in part to a division between Kosygin—a dove—and Brezhnev—a hawk. He also points out that this was the second time the Kremlin had made a bad blunder—the first being the Soviet position in the Arab-Israeli war of June 1967.

"The leaders who have shown twice in two years such gross inability to understand the psychology and motivation of other nations command more than enough nuclear weapons to devastate the earth," he writes. "The thought is not reassuring."

This is an important book for all serious students of the Red world.

Surrealist Filmfest

Five surrealist films were shown recently in the continuing fine arts film series at Bennett College, Millbrook. The program, to which the public was invited, took place in Matthison-Kennedy Auditorium.

Earliest of the surrealist films was "Le Chien Andalou," made in 1928 by Salvador Dali and Luis Bunuel. This has been termed "art production from the unconscious" and is said to confront "the sepectator with himself, with his own distresses, his phantasms, his obscure impulses, his unavowed distresses and moral fumbings."

"The Seashell and the Clergyman," also made in 1928, was directed by Germaine Dulac and contains images highly influenced by Freudian theory. The British Board of Censors banned it because it was "so cryptic as to be almost meaningless . . . if there is a meaning, it is doubtless objectionable."

Walt Disney's "Skeleton Dance" followed. Made in 1929, it was the first of his Silly Symphonies, produced before the series became colored films. It is his animation of Saint-Saens' "Dance Macabre."

Although the last two films were not made until 1963, both are considered surrealist. "Towers Open Fire," narrated by and starring William Burroughs, was written by him in the 1930s and is called a hymn to dream machines. Bruce Baillie's "Mass (for the Dakota Sioux)" is a portrait of America in both its ugliness and beauty.

GROUP CAMPING can shape up into a small city when 2,100 families show up for a campvention at Webster Park in New York State.

Camp-O-Rama See It NOW At New Paltz Fair Grounds

Little known fact to those of us devoid of pioneering instincts is that the behemoth known as the National Campers and Hikers Association had its inception right here in the Catskill Mountains. That was back in the early 1950's as a campsite on the Beavertown River, known for both its beauty and its fantastic trout fishing.

It was at this campsite that H. E. (Hank) Elsworth, the founder of NCHA, was camping (as was his usual wont) with a happy, friendly group of families on a hillside when a distinguished doctor from New York City drove up with a small boy in search of a perfect spot to fish.

The doctor and his son were ensconced in a fashionable hotel nearby; had spotted an old covered bridge while out adventuring with rod and reel. Driving across the bridge, they came upon "Hank" and his friends, who seemed to be having more fun camping out than they were having in their luxurious hotel. Legend has it that the good doctor was so impressed, he forthwith drove more than 100 miles back to Manhattan; returned post-haste with a tent of sorts and an array of equipment. Rescued from the difficulties that always face amateur campers by Hank, who helped him set up his campsite, the doctor was finally free to visit with other campers. He opined as how a camping club could become a new source for social enrichment, and Hank Nathan, forsaking inertia, ordained that there was indeed a camping club . . . as of right now.

From Local to National

It operated for several years on a more or less local scale; eventually burgeoned into the National Campers and Hikers Association, as it is known and exists today, when campers outside the group began beating on the canvas flaps to join up. Today, there are members in every state of the U.S., Canada, and several other countries—and it all began on our Beavertown.

There are now more than 1,600 Chartered Chapters and 188 Teen Chapters made up of more than 46,000 families in NCHA. New York State alone has 211 chapters and the Hudson Valley District can boast 43 of these, with more chapters in the forming stage. Empire state families (including children) account for roughly 184,000 of the national membership, and figures indicate that NCHA will be able to claim more than 50,000 family group members by this July.

Here in Ulster County, six chartered chapters are operating and active at the present time. They're the Camptown Trotters of Woodstock, Pat DiSalvo, president; Camplitters of New Paltz, Bruce Ashton, president; Huguenot Hobos of Milton, Ray Brooks, president; Kats-Kill-Kats of Mt. Marion, Rolf Borgen, president; Onteora Travelers of Kingston, John Barton, president; Shongum Shockers of Ellenville, Bob Bradford, president. Ulster County Field Directors of NCHA are Bob and Betty Dawson of Ellenville, Fran and Wes Cross of High Falls, and Eric and Virginia Wiltz of Woodstock. Serving as Hudson Valley District Directors are Bob and Kay Crowell of Wappingers Falls over in Dutchess County.

Whenever you see a modern pioneer trekking the highways and byways, or come upon a campfire blazing at night, chances are you've glimpsed a NCHA member in quest of fun and friendship in the great outdoors. Besides enjoying themselves to the hilt, they use their organization to educate members and the public about outdoor living and to enhance the social culture and recreational life of the country. Concerned with conservation of natural resources, NCHA also works to improve camping and hiking ideas and evaluates equipment in these recreational endeavors.

As clubs, local chapters provide the opportunity for families to camp-out, enjoy potluck dinners, swap tales and recipes around the campfire, share information and form friendships in summer and winter alike. It's a fraternity that welcomes anyone with a normal interest in camping and nature, and one that has earned its nickname of "the friendliest people in the world."

This weekend, local chapters are letting the rest of us have an inside look at what camping and outdoor family living is all about. At an Ulster County Camp-O-Rama on the Ulster County Fair Grounds at New Paltz today and tomorrow, thousands of families will stream through the gates to see outdoor family living on review. In a sprawling array of camping units and refreshment stands, many area families have set up an outdoor "city" to prove that life in the unpolluted air and fraternizing with the wild animals and birds far from the roar of the factories in the best of all possible lives.

Those who wend their way down to New Paltz this weekend will find that camping can be luxurious as well as hardy. Many of the recreational vehicles on display are plush by any description; include such household conveniences as hot water, showers and baths.

Veteran Travelers

Talk to some of the families or the fairgrounds and you'll find they've taken their camping units all across the continental United States.

In addition, more than $130,000 in the latest camping equipment is being displayed and demonstrated by area commercial exhibitors. It's enough to convince anyone that recreational outdoor living (or "camping" if you go by Funk and Wagnalls) is definitely becoming the number one leisure time happening. And that could well be since the recreational vehicle institute expects to build more than 75,000 units this year alone. By 1970, more than one million tent trailers, travel trailers and motor homes are expected to dot America, and nobody is willing or able to count the number of tents being used for camping.

The Camp-O-Rama is well worth a visit; is open to the public free of charge until 5 p. m. today, and from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. tomorrow. There's prices, displays and information galore on private and publicly owned recreational facilities, and it's all yours for the taking at the Fair Grounds on Albany Post Road in New Paltz this weekend.

OUTDOOR LIVING can be luxurious when it's practiced at sun-drenched, palm-treed environs of Thompson County Park in Miami, Fla.

Retelling the Tales of the Catskills

A major attempt to gather the folksongs and folk tradition of the Hudson Valley into one all-day program will take place in Middletown on Sunday, May 4, on the picturesque campus of Orange County Community College.

Performers, folksinging buffs, faculty and students from this history-rich region in which we live are working under college auspices to put together the first of what will hopefully become an annual Mid-Hudson Folk Festival.

Singers, fiddlers and harmonica players who will retail the Catskill tales in word and song at OCCC will include such unquestionable talents as:

Sara Cleveland, whose memory bank holds more than 400 "old traditional" and new folk songs, many learned as a child from her Irish mother.

The Patons

Sandy and Caroline Paton, the dynamic husband-and-wife team whose careers have grown from singers to collectors of traditional music to organizers and owners of a recording firm specializing in folk songs.

Grant Rogers, who was playing the fiddle in Delaware square dances at the tender age of seven, and 50 years later is regarded as one of the best of traditional musicians and composers.

Lawrence Older, a woodsman at heart whose singing of old family songs and those popular in local tradition creates a close rapport with his audiences.

Dan Smith, a North Carolinian harmonica player and singer steeped in Southern religious tradition who has recently migrated to New York State.

Visitor From Scotland

Scotsman Norman Kennedy, who will come from overseas to repeat a performance that has made him a perennial favorite at the famed Newport Folk Festival and a frequent visiting spinner-songster at Colonial Williamsburg.

Says Dr. Walter Gard of OCCC, who is taking time out from his chemistry and astronomy studies to chair the festival committee of this Lyceum Series event: "Norman is coming because we've found, strangely enough that the Mid-Hudson tradition is British, not Dutch or German, as many people believe."

The all-day program on May 4 is aimed at fostering family interest in folksinging; will include a children's concert, public workshops and an open sing in an attempt to bring together all the folksongs and folk tradition of the historic Hudson Valley region. The children's concert (parents can attend too) will be held outdoors on the OCCC campus starting at 1 p. m. to open the event. At 3 p. m. a series of workshops in ballads, ballad-making, tale-telling, plucked instruments, and the open sing will take place. The featured concert will start at 7:30 p. m. in Orange Hall.

The entire program will take place on the college grounds within the shadow of the unique turn-of-the-century Mansion, boasting 40 rooms, Tiffany windows and Italian marble fireplaces, which was the early home of the college. A booth on the grounds will offer folksong instruments and souvenirs and records of the festival performers. To encourage family participation, all-day tickets for the program will be offered at only $1 for adults with children admitted free.

WHY WE SAY

COURTSHIP

FOR KINGS: The original courting was done by anyone who wanted to gain favors, but a lady wasn't usually involved. The expression started from the custom of bringing gifts to the king's court to obtain favors.

MOVIES

Charly

In "Charly" the subject is mental retardation, but handled with such a fresh approach that it is a delight to see. How many movies can boast a hero who starts off with an I.Q. of 59, submits to a spectacular brain operation and, tutored to a fare-thee-well to make up for lost time, turns into a raving genius?

Based on a prize-winning science-fiction novel, "Charly" concerns itself with the urgent, contemporary problem of mental retardation rather than with outer space. It raises the possibility of instant brains, which is an intriguing idea, to say the least. And it has a truly extraordinary performance by Cliff Robertson as Charly, the defective turned genius. Rarely on screen does one see such an astonishing transformation from one end of the intellectual spectrum to the other—and one done with such cleverness. Excellent, too, is the performance by lovely Claire Bloom, playing the tutor with whom Charly falls in love. And a smart little white mouse named Algernon steals a few scenes from the human actors when he undergoes the same operation as Charly and becomes his rival in a series of amusing but sometimes heart-breaking mental tests.

As it unrolls itself currently at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre, this movie is a simple and suspenseful dramatic situation of a human being faced with a whole new life—complete with beautiful girl—and wondering wistfully how long he can hold on to it. Surprises abound in this script about a good-natured and retarded bakery worker who gropes agonizingly for knowledge and becomes a thoughtful, brilliant adult, with mature problems and emotions to replace his former questing. "Charly" is a total success and well worth seeing.

Buona Sera, Mrs. Campbell

This is a very, very funny movie. It has a humorous script with lots of happy situations, and the cast burgeons with acting talent. Furthermore, they are all people we can recognize. They may be passionate and lustful at times, but they are singularly nice most of the time.

"Buona Sera, Mrs. Campbell," now at the Rosendale Theatre, has a plot that sounds corny in black-and-white, but is delightful on screen. An Air Force squadron is holding a 20th anniversary reunion in the tiny Italian town it occupied during World War II. Nostalgic fun for the squadron members, perhaps, but a pain in the neck for a local lady who, during the war, had been more than a trifle friendly with a corporal, a sergeant and a lieutenant in turn. After their departure, she discovers she is pregnant and dreams up an enterprising scheme. She lets each of the three soldiers think he is the father of the coming child and their monthly payments of support have brought her a fine villa, a vineyard, and a good Swiss school for her daughter.

Coming to the reunion with his wife and, in one case, three young sons, each former AF man is looking forward to meeting his old amour and the now grown daughter of their union. From there on in, we're off on a tangled skein of hairbreadth chance meetings and a game of musical chairs as the Italian mama strives to keep each man from learning about the others.

Topnotch Cast

Gina Lollobrigida is luscious and wily as the still beautiful Italian who was just a slip of a girl at the end of World War II. Phil Silvers, Peter Lawford and Telly Savalas are topnotch as her old admirers, now grown gray, paunchy and bald.

The farcical gags come fast and furious, along with a bit of sentimental piety. There is something very touching, fresh, frenetic and hilarious about this film. It is an adult human comedy that should be totally appreciated by the sophisticated mind, and it has some perceptive and cogent comments for our times on what is involved in marriage, parenthood and affairs of the heart. An excellent cast brings it all to sparkling life and, if the subject matter is a trifle sticky, there is a total absence of vulgarity.

Aiding and abetting the comedy along are Shelley Winters as the wife of former corporal turned - successful - New Jersey businessman, Phil Silvers; Lee Grant as the shrewish wife of former sergeant-and-still small potatoes Telly Savalas; Marian Moses as the ladylike spouse of ex-lieutenant - and - current playboy, Peter Lawford; Janet Margolin as the daughter everyone's panting to see; and Phillippe Leroy, an excellent French actor who plays the incorrigible Gina's current and long-time lover through the years.

Other Choices

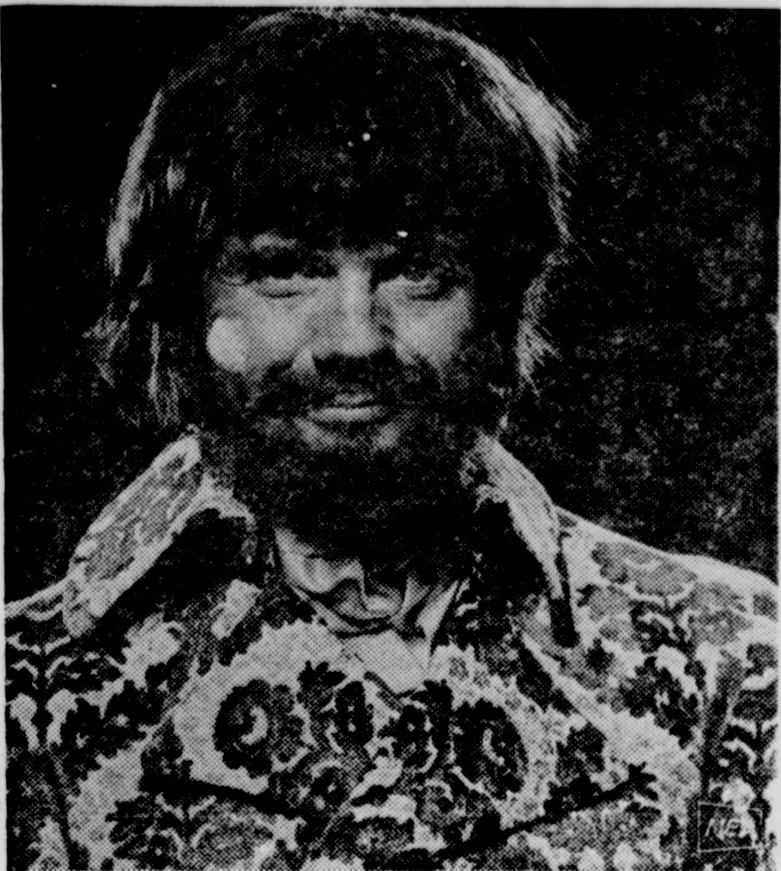

BULLITT. Unique and totally marvelous detective story that has plenty of suspense, action, and fascinating crime world detail, but poses the question of a man's acceptance of living constantly with violence. Now playing at the Sunset Drive-In here, it has Steve McQueen as a super-cool detective who isn't sure he like his work. He plays it his way, goes his own route when assigned to guard a key crime witness. Low-key, ultra-slick, realistic, and beautifully photographed in San Francisco, this is a superbly crafted film. In addition to McQueen, it also stars Robert Vaughn, Jacqueline Bisset, Don Gordon, Simon Oakland, and Robert Duvall.

GONE WITH THE WIND.

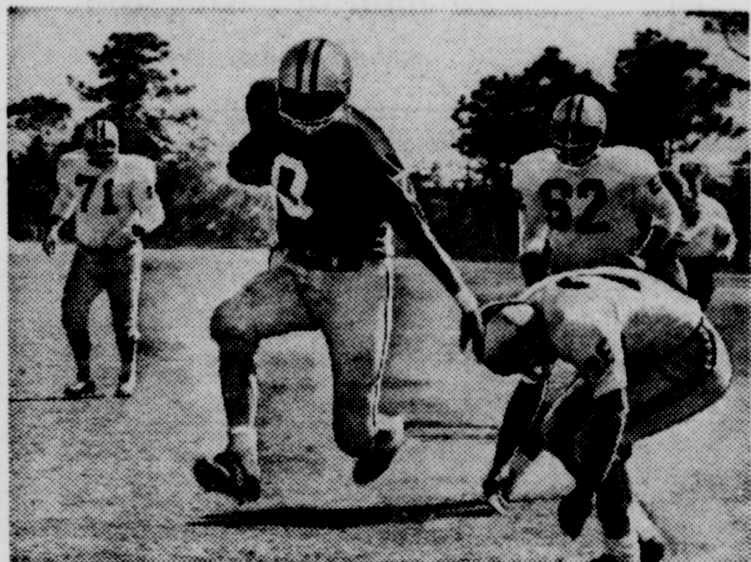

Held over at Kingston's Community Theatre for a second week, this Hollywood museum-piece will make over '30s turn nostalgic. Re-processed for wide screen and stereophonic sound, it's more spectacular than ever. Vivien Leigh's acting still glows with as much force as it did in 1939 and, this time around, we picked up an anti-war viewpoint we'd missed the first time out. Take along your hankie and be prepared to cry if you're an incurable romantic. Because this is romance with a capital "R" from a Dixie slant. Superlative performances by Clark Gable, Leslie Howard, Olivia de Havilland and Hattie McDaniel still stand up after all these years.

PAPER LION. This great co-feature on the Sunset Drive-In's

PLACE THE FACE? It's Cliff Robertson as you'll see him in "CHARLY," a property he's been trying to bring to the screen since 1961. He finally made it, and it was worth all that effort. An excellent film, it's now playing at Walter Reade's Mayfair Theatre here.

ALAN ALDA stars as George Plimpton in "PAPER LION," on the double bill now at Kingston's Sunset Drive-In in Technicolor. Based on Plimpton's best-selling novel about his brief and battered career as a Lion quarterback, the film features actual members of the famous Lions and depicts many exciting football scenes.

VIVIEN LEIGH as that fiery Southern belle, Scarlett O'Hara, uses her feminine wiles on Leslie Howard, as the gentle and oh-so-honorable Ashley Wilkes, in scene from "GONE WITH THE WIND," the Civil War spectacular which has been re-released. Now 30 years old, the film is still so big at the box office that it's been held over a second week at Kingston's Community Theatre.

Plays by Albee

Two one-act plays by Pulitzer Prize-winner Edward Albee will be the second production of the spring semester by the Apprentice Players of Orange County Community College, Middletown. "The American Dream" and "The Death of Bessie Smith," two early works by the author of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?," will be staged in the Orange Hall theater at OCCC on May 1, 2 and 3. Curtain time is 8:30 each evening. John P. Blue, assistant professor of speech at OCC, will direct the performances. The first Apprentice Players production this spring was a Children's Theater version of "Rip Van Winkle."

MOVIES

DECLINE AND FALL OF A BIRD WATCHER. Hurry on over to Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema tonight, the last night this scathingly funny satire of some of England's sturdiest traditions is playing. It's by Evelyn Waugh; concerns innocent Paul Pennyfeather's adventures with the British establishment after his prankish fellow student at Oxford gets him unjustly expelled on a morals charge. Though totally unqualified to teach, he goes to work for an extraordinary school for boys; catches the ever-wandering eye of the glamorous mother of one of the students. Before long he's ensconced at her monstrous estate, where the lady selects him as her next husband. White slavery also crops up in this film that takes pot-shots at sacred English institutions, and the satire is a romp of irreverent antics in the hands of a perfect, mostly English cast, with Robin Phillips as the put-upon innocent and Genevieve Page as the fascinating temptress.

PRETTY POISON. Opening Sunday at Woodstock's Tinker

Street Cinema is this film with a fascinating if repulsive subject. Highly praised by some of the top critics and blazingly scorched by others, it's about an unbalanced young man who pretends to be a C.I.A. agent and leads a high school girl into events that turn bloody and repellent.

"Poison" explores the manner in which the greatest can come from people seemingly in tune with our accepted values. Tuesday Weld is surprisingly chilling as the pretty but monstrous girl. Others in the cast are Anthony Perkins, Beverly Garland, and John Randolph.

Particularly effective is the setting used—a quiet New England town, pleasant in autumn splendor—into which intrudes two shocking murders. (PREVIEWED AND REVIEWED BY T. GEERTSEMA)

Television

It's not that we don't like animals—we do. We're kind to our cat and dog; love circuses and zoos. But we've had it with the Sunday night TV menagerie that's been on for several seasons. We just can't sit through another 52 weeks of Lassie—but it looks like we'll have to 'cause it'll be back. Still, there's some relief in sight from all those furry friends. Gentle Ben has decided he can't "bear" a TV career any longer.

It's not only in America that TV fans like vampires like Jonathan Frid who, as daytime

TV fans know, is the most popular thing (fangs and all) on Dark Shadows. A pretty little English blonde named Susan George recently played a vampire in a British TV production of "Dracula" and was virtually snowed under in fan mail.

Robert Brown, the rugged, handsome, Errol Flynn type star of Here Come the Brides, made a guest appearance at a telethon recently and was mobbed. A policeman at the studio where Brown works says he hasn't seen such feminine excitement over any actor since Sinatra worked there back in 1943.

There's going to be another TV wedding next season. Jeannie (Barbara Eden) and Tony (Larry Hagman) will be married on I Dream of Jeannie in the eighth show of the season. Wonder if he'll make her spend as much time in her bottle after the I do's?

RANDOM THOUGHTS ON THIS WEEK'S VIEWING:

The Tony Awards program—in which Broadway patted itself on the back—was draggy and laggy in part, but worth watching just for the scenes from nominated shows alone, and for the noble acceptance speeches from Laurence Olivier, Rex Harrison and Leonard Bernstein on their special awards.

The 21st Century offered a fascinating report of automobile safety today and the possibilities for the future.

NBC's White Paper gave a dimension sorely needed to the controversy over student unrest. Concentrating on why today's society seems so fragmented, the news series showed a breakdown in the ability of people to look at things and agree on what they are seeing.

TV's prestigious TV magazine, 60 Minutes, got gossipy—but what lovely high level and historic gossip it was. Totally delightful was 85-year-old Alice Roosevelt Longworth (daughter of President Teddy Roosevelt), who told all about President Warren Harding's use of bootleg booze in the White House and President Franklin R. Roosevelt's other love interest above and beyond Eleanor.

Maybe it's only because we're in the "business," but we thought Prudential's On Stage production of "This Town Will Never Be the Same" was excellent viewing. All about the death of a newspaper in a moderately large city, it boasted a fine confrontation scene between E. G. Marshall as the paper's owner, and Barry Sullivan as its managing editor.

Johnny Cash and Glen Campbell, though dissimilar country-western type singers, fit together like hand in glove on this week's Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour.

NBC's Project Twenty came up with the type of program that makes the price of your TV set worth every penny. Aptly titled "Meet George Washington," it had narrator Melvyn Douglas insisting that "America, to its great loss, has petrified" the First President. From there on in, the program proceeded to turn the image of Washington from canvas and bronze to one of flesh and blood by showing his early military career, his life as a gentleman farmer in Virginia, and depictions of the Revolutionary War and the first stumbling days of the new nation.

PICK OF THE PROGRAMS FOR THE WEEK AHEAD:

A LOOK ON THE LIGHT SIDE (NBC, 7:30 p.m.). A diverting and diverse special that takes in many parts of the country and all four seasons and is hosted by Bill Dana as Jose Jimenez. In an eye-catching and breath-taking potpourri of Americana, viewers see a snowmobile moundup at Yellowstone, a pancake race, a square dance done with jeeps in the Arizona desert, a 100-mile per hour race of ice boats in Michigan, a kite fly in San Diego, "shooting the rapids" in Oregon, and college students racing mobile beds in Alabama.

JOSE LIMON (l) as Othello and Lucas Hoving as Iago in "The Moor's Pavane," one of the Limon dances to be featured in NET Festival's "The World of Jose Limon." The hour-long special has rated rave reviews; will trace the life and artistry of this noted American modern dancer and choreographer when it is shown Wednesday, April 30, at 8 p.m. on Channel 17.

Sunday, April 27

Going Gourmet

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

The restaurant of the hour, according to the ski buffs, is Maison Lafayette on Route 28 in Big Indian. But it's much too marvelous a place to allow the skiers to have it all to themselves, and its almost overwhelming Continental French cuisine menu was meant to be enjoyed by everyone.

Among the classic dishes served at Maison Lafayette, only five miles from Belleayre Mountain Ski Center: full-bodied onion soup and potage du jour, unbelievably and marvelously rich tasting Fish Soup Marseillaise, snails, Pate Maison, excellently prepared oysters Rockefeller, mussels, Coquille Gratin Maison. There's also frogs legs, veal kidney, sweetbread, Poulet au Vin, and such beautifully delicate desserts as whipped ice cream pie made with creme de menthe, rum (mousse), peach melba, strawberry coupe and homemade tartelettes.

Maison Lafayette lends itself ideally to an intimate full-course dinner or a festive hot or cold luncheon. Its char-rock broiled steaks and chops make for regal eating, but the specialties are far more interesting. And chief-proprietor Honore Martin, who formerly operated Honore's La Coquille restaurant in New York City and was the chef at Albany's famous Keeler's for 14 years, is ready, willing and able to prepare ANY of his specialties is notified in advance.

Excellent Dinners

Among the pleasurable and excellent complete table d'hote dinners and a la carte offerings are: shell crabs at $4.50; red snapper, cornish hen and sweetbreads at $4.75; curried shrimp at $5.50; brook trout Amandine at only $4.25; and lobster Newburg or thermidor, filet mignon and lobster tails at $6 and $6.50.

A handsome establishment, Maison Lafayette (named for THE Lafayette who came to George Washington's aid) boasts a wine table that — in turn — boasts a fascinating selection of fine imported and domestic wines. Its wall-to-wall carpeting, yellow and gold decor, proliferation of "live" plants, and paintings (most for sale) done by owner Martin's wife Fridi, all add to its chic.

The restaurant's menu is somewhat picturesquely listed on a blackboard and a word must be said for the crepe (or stuffed pancakes) specialties which appear there. Flavorful and delicious are all the crepes and a diner has a selection of four intriguing choices. There's crepes stuffed with seafood au Sherry Newburgh for $3.25; burgeoning with chopped beef Provencale for $3; overflowing with curried chicken Indienne for $3; and bursting with cream cheese aux herbes for $2.50. All are served with salad and coffee.

Other specials that are low priced but good are broiled swordfish at $2.75 and chicken livers with rice for $3. Cozy and friendly is the atmosphere at this French restaurant whose windows afford a spectacular view of the most scenic portions of the Catskills. And deserving of being classified as "wonderful" is the Continental Cuisine Soignee, whether it's the appetizer, soup, entree or dessert. Kudos to this family run restaurant (father, mother, daughter, son-in-law) which serves the most unbelievable shrimp cocktail we've ever tasted at the unbelievable price of only $.75.

Renovations at Stockade Restaurant coming right along. Posted sign really means business: Excuse our dust, but grow we must. . . . Menu at Jamaica Inn, Latham-Schenectady Road, listed Blue Mountain Favorites. Were they expecting Al and Ruth Cawein? Obviously! . . . What Rosendale cut-up painted "Stalag 17" on the high wooden fence near the theatre?

Everybody has his own pet idiosyncrasy for food concoctions but Chet Beesmer likes peasoup sandwiches?? . . . Ever had a hankering to be center of attraction? Wait for full house at Kingston Tea Garden, ask for Seafood Wor Bar, and wait till the waitress brings your order. No further hints disclosed but results guaranteed.

New York's Mamma Leone's is usually criterion by which Italian cuisine is judged. And the amount of food served there is more-than-a-bit-much. Some time ago Joan and Joe Dittus and Bill Leonard and his missus stopped in for dinner. After the last course, the maitre d' asked if they required anything more. Understand Bill had one request: oxygen.

Is it any wonder Lefooters Emily and Lou Spada stay so slim? Square dancers "do-si-do" to the tune of two and one-half miles per night; and it's more fun than joggin' . . . Shocked to see Duke Locke minus goatie; now he no longer smacks of Vincent VanGogh . . . "Do-Rag" is this year's emblem for fun; knew you'd want to know what they call it.

Dick Hayman of Albany Times-Union writes there's a restaurant in Detroit that has posted a sign: As our silverware is not medicine, it should not be taken after meals . . . Foliage display at Arnold's Restaurant 19 is so real, it almost looks artificial . . . What impressed us most at Olana mansion house was the amber-colored glass in the windows so that even on cloudy days the interior looks "sunny."

Remember Kingston's Ryan triplets—Minna, Michele and Maureen — of CP television fame? Well, their mom and dad, Jean and Ernie, just had their 20th-anniversary, that is. Cars lined both sides of West Chestnut Street Saturday as buddies offered "best wishes." Saw Pastor and Mrs. David Gaise, Coroner Sherrill Keyser, Andy, and Jane Gilday, Mrs. Frank Thompson Sr. (Jim's grandmere), Henry Peyer, Tom and Marion Maines. Professionally, Mrs. Ryan is Jean DuBois, known locally as director of girls' physical education at various schools and instructor of gym and swimming programs at YWCA.

Not that Goldie Hawn needs any help but if Kathy Lennon had married Oliver Twist, she'd have been Kathy Lennon Twist; if Gladys Bell married Ernest Ringer, she'd have been one Glad Bell Ringer; if Ina Post had wed Charles Carde, she'd have been Ina Post Carde; if Edna Sauer had married Don Crout, she'd have been Edna Sauer Crout; and if Mary Lou Cooper had married Larry Hooper, she'd have been Mary Lou Cooper Hooper. Sure makes one think twice before saying "I do," wouldn't you say?

A 'Fun' Approach to Creativity

For a number of years now, children and parents alike in many parts of the country have become caught up in creative dramatics and dance improvisation. In such groups children act out a story or do dance improvisations to it, perhaps a story of their own. Memorized lines, and taught steps are not a part of this informal and creative approach—but the child is allowed to explore and develop his own expression of what he feels. The self-confidence and imagination of the child is enhanced through these activities, advocates feel.

No only is this a 'fun' approach but it has definite advantage for the learning process and for those with special needs, teachers and youngsters have found.

Robert Russell is again opening classes combining creative dance, drama and music at his studio in Woodstock with groups ranging from pre-school through sixth grade and also a teen-age theater group for junior and senior high school students. Those interested in further information should call the Russell studio in Woodstock, at its Deming Street address.

conducting the New York Philharmonic in an all-Bach program. There'll be pure Bach, transcribed Bach (Stokowski conducting his own transcription), electronic Bach (by a Moog Synthesizer), avant-garde Bach (composed by Lukas Foss) and "switched-on" Bach by the New York Rock and Roll Ensemble.

21st CENTURY (CBS, 6 p.m.). A look at the traffic jams overhead with "The Air Jam." Shows what airports are—and aren't—doing to combat the problems that will be even greater in the future when the jumbo jets get flying.

FELICIANO — VERY SPECIAL (NBC, 10 p.m.). Jose Feliciano is a very special and very specialized talent, a blind Puerto Rican soul singer. Guesting with him on this show are Andy Williams, Glen Campbell, Dionne Warwick and Burt Bacharach.

CALIFORNIA: SHAKIN' AWAY? (Channel 5, 10:30 p.m.). Blending information and entertainment, this program will investigate the current rash of psychic and scientific predictions prophesying 1969 as the year the infamous San Andreas Fault will open and dump California into the Pacific. There's some incredible footage of the great Alaskan earthquake of 1964, a photo-montage of the 1906 San Francisco catastrophe, interviews with self-appointed doomsday prophets, succinct remarks from the man-on-the-street, commentary by a scientific quake-measurer, and bouncy calypso music ("Day by Day, The Whole Place Slippin' Away").

Monday, April 28

SPRING THING (NBC, 8 p.m.). Noel Harrison and Bobbie Gentry host a lighthearted salute to spring with help from poet-singer-composer Rod McKuen, Shirley Bassey, Goldie Hawn and Meredith MacRae.

Tuesday, April 29

CBS REPORTS (CBS, 10 p.m.). An analysis of President Nixon's embattled ABM defense system.

Wednesday, April 30

NET FESTIVAL (Channel 17, 8 p.m.). "The World of Jose Limon," focusing on the life and artistry of the noted American modern dancer and choreographer. He'll perform two of the finest examples of his own choreography Missa Brevis and The Moor's Pavane.

MUSIC HALL (NBC, 4 p.m.). The very talented British satirists Peter Cook and Dudley Moore are drolly delightful in spoofs of a minibudget Western — East German style, "Rosemary's Baby Grows Up," and a take-off on "The Graduate," with Anne Bancroft recreating the role of Mrs. Robinson. Miss Bancroft is also in the "Rosemary's Baby" bit.

NIXON SPECIAL (Channel 13, 9 p.m.). A review of the "First 100 days" of the new Administration of President Richard M. Nixon.

Thursday, May 1

JACK PAAR (NBC, 10 p.m.). Paar makes a rare TV appearance with his informal film of a trip to Africa.

Friday, May 2

HALL OF FAME (NBC, 8:30 p.m.). Rerun for the first time since 1961 when it was the Emmy winning program of the year is "Victoria Regina," starring Julie Harris in the title role.

NET PLAYHOUSE (Channels 13 & 17, 8:30 p.m.). An ancient tragedy told in modern terms is "The Prodigal." Jack Richardson's forceful adaptation of the Greek legend of Orestes. An instant success when it was first produced, "Prodigal" features a team of distinguished American actors, headed by Kim Hunter, Aline MacMahon, John Heffernan and Cavada Humphrey. (T.G.)
